This project uses Tkinter for the graphical interface in Python, interacting with a Flask API on the backend. The Flask API handles various functionalities such as movie selection, real-time seat availability, reservation creation, and user authentication using Flask-Login. It uses JSON communication for data exchange between the Tkinter frontend and the Flask backend, ensuring smooth interaction. Additionally, the system uses session-based authentication for secure user login and reservation processes. Overall, it showcases a combination of front-end GUI development, back-end API creation, and secure authentication methodologies.
